BANKS, JOSEPH. Edited by BEAGLEHOLE, J. C.

The Endeavour Journal Of Joseph Banks 1767-1771. Two Volumes Set.

Second Edition; Roy 8vo; Volume I. pp. xxviii, 476; colour frontispiece, 19 pages plates at end of volume, 9 pages of colour illustrations, 6 text illustrations, 5 sketch maps; Volume II. pp. xviii, 406, 20 pages of plates at end of volume; colour frontispiece, 5 colour plates, 4 sketch maps including one, fold-out map showing track of endeavour round the world, both volumes uniformly bound in original maroon cloth, titles lettered in gilt on spines, good set (No Dustjackets).

Sydney; The Trustees of the Public Library of New South Wales in association with Angus and Robertson; 1963.

The work is notable for its wealth of illustrations, mainly by Sydney Parkinson, who went on the voyage as Banks's botanical draughtsman. Eighteen of his remarkably beautiful botanical and zoological drawings are reproduced for the first time in full colour, and there are in addition eighty plates in monochrome collotype, topographical, botanical, zoological, and ethnographical. The introduction is given a separate series of portraits and there are also a number of sketch maps. The great majority of these illustrations have not before been published. BARRINGTON, GEORGE.

A Voyage To Botany Bay. Together with his life and trial and the sequel to his voyage.

Limited Facsimile Edition; Sm. 8vo; pp. [xii], 120, 92; 1 plate, 1 double-page illustration, 1 fold-out map, bound in full blue leather binding, raised bands, title in gilt on spine, decoration in gilt on spine and boards, housed in original illustrated slipcase, slipcase a little browned, very good copy.

London; The Brummell Press; 1969.

Edition limited to 350 numbered copies. This copy being number 37. A unique and personal account of early British transportation to Australia. Written by Barrington, a former convict, the book details his journey to the penal colony at Botany Bay, reflecting on the hardships of transportation, life in the colony, and interactions with Indigenous Australians. Blending fact with some fiction, it offers an insightful yet romanticized view of this historical period. It remains a significant document of early Australian colonial history. "The Journal has several claims for attention: it is a rare British account of whaling activities in the South Seas, a field much dominated by the preponderance of American journals; it provides an interesting eyewitness account of the death of the great circumnavigator Captain James Cook R.N. recalled by a group of elderly Hawaiians; it records the discoveries of Phoenix Island and Canton Island, the last pieces of the jigsaw for the record of 19th century discoveries; and finally, and most importantly, the Journal throws new light on the opening up of the Pacific to missionary activity, to European settlement and to commercial exploration." n.p; n.d.

William Henry (1770-1859) was an Irish missionary for the London Missionary Society, he sailed with his wife and 30 missionaries on the Duff under the command of Capt. Jas. Wilson, to the South Seas in August 1796. Within a year concerns for their safety led to them leaving with their families for Sydney where they arrived in May 1798. He then established a mission in Parramatta and preached in the north-western districts of Sydney. Henry returned to Tahiti in October 1799, following an uprising in 1808 he went back to Sydney. He then returned back to Tahiti in 1812 this time bearing Lachlan Macquarie's appointment as "Magistrate for the Pacific Islands". He reported regularly with London and maintained contacts with Samuel Marsden at Parramatta as well as corresponding with former missionaries including Rowland Hassall and other colonial clergymen such as John Dunmore Lang. Henry served as a missionary in Tahiti and nearby islands for 50 years, retiring in 1847. In his retirement in Australia he continued to preach at St. Annes, Kissing Point, and acted as school master until his death at Ryde aged 89, in April 1859. Click here to Order

O'DONOVAN, JOHN.

Annals of The Kingdom of Ireland, by The Four Masters, from The Earliest Period to The Year 1616. Edited from MSS. in The Library of The Royal Irish Academy and of Trinity College, Dublin, with a Translation, and Copious Notes, By John O'Donovan.

Second Edition; Post 4to; Vol. I. pp. lxxii (last blank), 565; Vol. II. pp. [v], 566-1193; Vol. III. pp. [ii], 657; Vol. IV. pp. [v], 658-1259; Vol. V. pp. [v], 1260-1875; Vol. VI. pp. [v], 1876-2498; Vol. VII. [ii], 405; complete with all title pages, addendum and corrections at end of volume II, footnotes, index locorum and index nominum in volume VII, uniformly bound in later blue buckrum, title lettered in gilt on spines, previous owner's bookplate on endpapers, gutter of one fold reinforced with tape in volume one, good tight clean set.

Dublin; Hodges, Smith, and Co., Grafton Street Booksellers to the University; 1856.

The second edition of this work is considered the best, as it has the addition of the separate index volume. The work was original written in the early 1600's but was not published or translated until O'Donovan's prepared his edition between 1847 and 1856. O'Donovan's "Annals of the Kingdom of Ireland" is a meticulous and indispensable historical work, offering a profound glimpse into Ireland's past.

O'Donovan's scholarly rigor shines through in his detailed annotations and translations of ancient Irish texts, providing invaluable insights into early Irish history, culture, and society. His work not only preserves but also elucidates the annals' significance, making them accessible to scholars and enthusiasts alike. O'Donovan's dedication to accuracy and his deep understanding of Gaelic language and traditions make this volume essential for anyone interested in Irish history or medieval studies, cementing its place as a foundational text in Celtic scholarship. The work gives the Irish text, with the English translation and an copious amount of O'Donovan's valuable footnotes, topographical, genealogical, and historical. Click here to Order

Edinburgh; Scottish History Society; 1928, 1929, 1929.

The Books deal with the Jacobite Rising of 1745-6. An attempt to rescue, from the oblivion the prison history of the rank and file of the Jacobite army, that history has lain for one hundred and eighty years locked in the state papers, the names, the fate and, some extent, the achievements, of the prisoners is the subject of this work while at the same time throwing a good deal of light on the military aspects. An essential resource for historians studying the Jacobite Rebellion and its impact on 18th-century Britain. Click here to Order

Melbourne; Nelson; 1975.

Donald Thompson's expeditions and study of the Bindibu people, the last of the Aborigines living a traditional life in the desert. Their life austere their material culture simple; they wear no clothes, sleep naked in the intense cold of the desert night, and rear some of the fattest babies in the world. Thompson studied their social organisation, accompanied them on food-gathering expeditions, recorded their songs, photographed and observed their activities. With William Hosmer he collected an enormous number of zoological and botanical specimens. Click here to Order

TUNNARD, CHRISTOPHER.

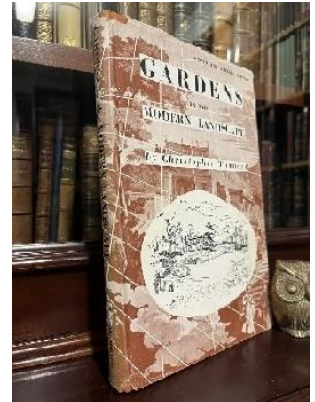

Gardens in the Modern Landscape: Second (revised) edition with new material on American Gardens, and a note on the Modern Garden by Dean Joseph Hudnut of Harvard University.

Second Revised Edition; Super Royal 8vo; pp. 184; text with numerous b/w. illustrations, garden plans, and drawings, bibliography, index, bound in original brown cloth, title lettered in gilt on spine, dustjacket chipped and damaged on edges, name and faint tape marks on endpapers, good copy. Scarce.

London; The Architectural Press; 1948.

Christopher Tunnard's "Gardens in the Modern Landscape" (1948, second and revised edition) stands as a seminal work that revolutionized landscape architecture. Tunnard boldly advocated for a departure from traditional garden design, emphasizing functionality, simplicity, and integration with modern architecture. His ideas pioneered the concept of the garden as an extension of architectural principles, promoting clean lines, spatial organization, and a harmony between built and natural environments. This book profoundly influenced post-World War II landscape design, inspiring practitioners to rethink conventional approaches and embrace a more contemporary aesthetic. Tunnard's vision continues to resonate today, highlighting the enduring importance of his contributions to the evolution of modern landscape architecture. Click here to Order
